At the Head of the Fiction of the Year

The
Amateur Gentleman

By Jeffery Farnol

A novel that is even greater than "The Broad Highway," now in its 160th thousand—that is what the discriminating critics are saying of "The Amateur Gentleman." Rarely has a young author more completely duplicated his first great literary achievement than has Jeffery Farnol in his new book.

FOUR TYPICAL OPINIONS

His best novel . . . Mr. Farnol's style is, if aught, breezier than ever.—Literary Digest, New York.

Combines and excels the virtues of his previous books.—London Morning Post.

Shows an advance of power on the writer's earlier work.—London Quarterly Review.

THE AMATEUR GENTLEMAN is now in its 2d Edition—
120th Thousand

It leads the novels of the season in both America and England, and promises to be a best seller throughout the year.

Fun

Did you ever fall down on an easy sale you could o' made just as a matter of course?

A man goes around kicking himself for a week after he has to say this:

"No, we didn't order 'Parrot & Co.', but if you'll come in next week,

"No, nor 'Mark Truitt,' but I'll get it—

"Yes, the publishers wrote me especially about 'The Upper Crust' by the 'Comes up smiling man'—I'll write tonight!"

ROMANCE

And all the time the hundreds of people with the MacGrath habit are looking for a chance to separate themselves from $1.35.

"Parrot & Co.!"

How can they help it?

You, yourself, can't help opening the book.

Somebody 'round the shop was crafty enough to put a Castaigne eye-catcher on page 86—just where the book buyer instinctively puts in his left thumb!

Try it yourself!

Don't you turn to page 1?

That's automatic book selling. MacGrath and "somewhere East o' Suez" get you.

LIFE

"Mark Truitt" is a head-liner that will be talked about wherever two women or two men get together.

It comes home to every woman.

These aren't people in a book. You'll find they are people you know.

That's the reason it will start or finish every piece of gossip this year whether it's in the sewing circle, in the drawing-room on Fifth Avenue or at the country club.

"The Man Higher Up" brought down the men like a rifle shot.

"Mark Truitt" is a masculine and feminine shotgun—with two barrels. All life is based on man's relations with the two kinds of women.

1. The woman who gives.

2. The woman who takes.

That's "Mark Truitt!"

Is it any wonder they gossip?

The best advertising campaign invented can do no more. Both are being done for "Mark Truitt."

FUN

Do you remember not long ago when we sent you one of these bulletins, saying:

"A brand new name appears on the title page. You may not know the name, but ten to one you'll recognize the stroke!"

Now the time's come when we can say:

"You know his name and you've watched the stroke and we all Come Up Smiling!"

This new one has the same punch!

"The Upper Crust."

Charles Sherman.

Watch them buy it!

Romance, Life and Fun!

Putnam's June Fiction

THE THUNDERHEAD LADY

By ANNA FULLER and BRIAN READ

"WANTED: By a Harvard Graduate, a permanent position as husband. Carefully trained by an anxious mother, and used to feminine domination."

So begins a clipping from the Boston Herald, written in jest, and printed from bravado, which elicits a reply from a chance reader and results in the correspondence that forms the substance of this little skit. From mock seriousness the writers drift off into more or less casual chat upon books and people, illumined from time to time with a touch of romance. The whole forms a bit of light reading which should appeal in equal measure to the thoughtful and the frivolous. With about 40 Line Drawings. $1.00 net.

SUNIA: A Himalayan Idyll; and Other Stories

By MAUD DIVER, Author of "Captain Desmond, V.C.", "The Hero of Herat," etc.

Maud Diver's charming story of India derives its dramatic power from the national prejudice, the bar of race that keeps the East and West apart, and yet is not proof against the appeal of sex. The deep, active, persistent heritage of Eastern tradition, ineradicable even under English rule, gives a quaint charm and picturesque quality to the pages of the volume which, in the form of dramatic incidents from the lives of those affected, presents the grafting of one civilization upon another and the inevitable contrasts that result. The wisdom of the East and the enterprise of the West are placed in impressive juxtaposition. $1.25 net.

AN UNKNOWN LOVER

By MRS. GEORGE DE HORNE VAIZEY

A charming love story. It moves rapidly, and at no point does it fail to hold the readers' attention and interest, from the first description of the rather dismal English home to the last picture, in India, whence comes the "Unknown Lover." Her characters are convincing and lovable; her descriptions facile and clear; her situations real, and her theme of setting delightfully unusual. $1.35 net.

THE FRIENDLY ENEMY

By I. P. CAMERON WILSON

A novel that is written with a rare consciousness of social wrong and an equally keen realization of the herculean difficulties in the way of its righting. It presents the inarticulate groping after better things and the active rebellion against things as they are. The story is full of tender interest. Its pathos is gripping, its humor irresistible. The emotional range is as astounding as that in Dicken's depictions of the poor, but the spirit with which the story is infused is more distinctly modern. $1.25 net.

THE ATTACK ON AMERICAN SCHOOL BOOK PUBLISHERS.

THREE weeks ago the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY reprinted from the Saturday Evening Post a strongly worded but apparently informed attack upon the American method of supplying school text books, i.e., by private compilation, manufacture and sale. By comparison with the governmental text-books of our Canadian neighbors in Ontario, the American text-books appeared unreasonably high priced. We say "apparently informed," because a close analysis of it by any one acquainted with the facts revealed a very considerable bias as well as many actual errors. More recently, the Saturday Evening Post issued a very fair editorial retraction of that portion of Mr. Crissey's article relative to the high cost of American text-books, a clear statement which we reprint elsewhere in this issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

Any one at all familiar with the school book business knows that few, if any, articles of merchandize are sold on a more slender margin of profit for all concerned. In the case of the bookseller the margin is sometimes so small as to result in a net loss on school book business, a loss that has, as Mr. Barnes pointed out in his recent paper before the American Booksellers' Convention, to be debited to advertising and made up on the profits in handling second-hand school books and school supplies. How inadequate the margin is in the case of the publisher is keenly known to those who have closest knowledge of the facts.

It is obvious that, with such slight margins over manufacturing and prime cost in the case of the American text-book, it is impossible to cut the price materially by any other means than a transfer of the burden of cost. Of course, as the Post points out, that burden can be shifted over to the tax payers of the community or state; but that does not actually reduce it—in fact, in practice, because of decreased economies in production, it always has increased it.

There are abuses in the text-book field, Mr. Crissey cites—but generally exaggerates—some of them. No one more clearly realizes these evils than the men at the head of the various school book businesses of this country; for most of them are men not only of good business judgment, but of broad public spirit and a sincere desire for educational betterment. It is probably not too much to say that few businesses have had to face in recent years so sustained and often bitter an attack of misrepresentation and maladroit legislation—and there is more than a suspicion among those familiar with the situation that a large part of this attack has been inspired and organized.

The arguments in favor of state-supplied school books are, however, so plausible and specious as to be difficult to combat. The average parent, especially of the poorer class, knows nothing of the enormous investment of thought, money and energy going into the production of a twenty cent primer. But he does realize keenly the difference between twenty cents and six cents, or twenty cents and nothing at all. He does realize and resent the—to him—unwarranted burden of frequent change in purchased text-books, and unnecessary variations in books between one school district and another. He is unable to understand the possible pedagogical desirability of the change in either case—and the legislator is often himself more in accord with the parent's point of view than with the educational expert's.

On a narrow basis of just popular complaint, therefore, a great structure of prejudice, error and "reform legislation" has been reared, the removal of which now faces the educational publishers as a very knotty problem. Of course, to cite one or two errors, no Illinois county uses "one hundred and thirteen distinct sets of text-books," because—as the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY with its annual Educational List is very well aware—one hundred and thirteen distinct sets of text-books do not exist. Neither could the state of Illinois, as Mr. Crissey says, save a "round million dollars a year" by a system of uniform text-books, for the very good reason that, so far as the best-informed school book publishers have been able to figure out, the state of Illinois spends in all only a little over $900,000 a year for text-books. And, as bearing on this question of accuracy we are informed that the views of Mr. Edwin R. Wright, President of the Illinois Federation of Labor, who is quoted from at length and endorsed by Mr. Crissey, were vigorously attacked in a report adopted April 7th by the Chicago Federation of Labor, as being opposed to the aim of public education.

The publication of the article in question has aroused no little comment both within and out the book trade, and its reprint in the WEEKLY has brought us a number of interesting letters from both publishers and booksellers. Some of these correspondents seem to have misunderstood the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY's attitude in such reprinting. For matter appearing in its columns, other than its own editorials the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY it need hardly be said, necessarily assumes no responsibility, and a mere printing of such articles is in no sense an endorsement of them. It would seem to us always of value "to see ourselves as others see us" and that it is legitimately within the province of a trade paper like the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to reprint in substantial quotation any such seriously intended attacks upon the publishing business in any of its phases. To know that such attacks are made and what they are certainly seems to us on the contrary of first importance to the publishing trade and all concerned.

HAVE you packed your bag yet for the Chicago Book Fair which will fill the week beginning June 16th—note the date, June 16th, two weeks earlier this year than heretofore. The Book Fair, and the Field Day inseparably connected with it, is coming to loom larger each year among the bookman's annual events. This year the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY will be for the first time personally represented. We venture the prediction there will be a large accession of "first-timers" this year.

It is difficult to estimate at this writing the exact importance of the net price case decision handed down Monday by the Supreme Court of the United States. The decision, as summarized by the daily press, is given elsewhere. Such fuller quotation as may seem desirable on receipt of the complete text of the decision with editorial comment, will appear later.

AMERICAN TEXTBOOKS

SOME weeks ago, says the Saturday Evening Post in its issue for April 19th, an article appeared in these columns under the heading, Expensive Free Education, in which Mr. Edwin R. Wright, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, compared the prices of American and Canadian schoolbooks in such a manner as to give the impression that parents in the Province of Ontario can buy elementary textbooks for their children, equal in every respect to those sold in the United States, at very much lower prices.

Mr. Wright specifically instanced a primer, used in the schools of Ontario, which is sold at the modest price of four cents, and compared it with an American primer that costs twenty-five cents. The Canadian book was prepared under the supervision of the provincial government and is published by a Toronto merchant. On the face of it, here is a rather startling discrepancy in price; but it becomes less and less startling as the facts surrounding the two books are examined. A twenty-five-cent American primer and the four-cent Canadian book were laid side by side and carefully inspected. The former is the larger book. It contains more paper and forty more pages than the latter. The paper stock used is of a higher grade; the binding is more substantial, the illustrations are better drawn and are more beautifully reproduced. Still, at first blush, the Canadian book appears the better money's worth.

Experts who have examined the Canadian book say that the mechanical cost of producing it would be in the neighborhood of seven cents. This means that if the electrotypes were turned over to a publisher he would have to spend that amount on paper, presswork and binding. Why, then, does the Toronto merchant sell the book at four cents? Presumably, because he thinks it good advertising and because he values the prestige that grows out of supplying an official book.

Here is another fact of prime importance: Before the book was turned over to the publisher it had cost the provincial government, for writing, editing, illustration and the making of plates, upwards of eight thousand dollars. The people of Ontario paid this eight thousand dollars; but, like the drummer's spring suit, it did not appear in the bill. Divide this amount up among an edition of one hundred thousand primers and you have each little book saddled with an invisible charge of eight cents that somebody has paid in taxes. The farther the comparison of the two books is pursued, the more the apparent price discrepancy dwindles.

American schoolbook publishers feel that some statements in the article in question reflect unfairly on their business. They particularly resent the statement that it would be possible to save American parents millions of dollars annually by having the Government go into the schoolbook business. They assert that our total annual expenditure for text-books is only about twelve million dollars, and that this sum is divided among more than sixty competing concerns. In justice to these publishing houses, the Saturday Evening Post is glad to present their side of the question.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS PRICE CUTTING ON PATENTED GOODS.

IN SANATOGEN CASE DEFINITELY OVERTHROWS ALLEGED RIGHT OF PATENTEE TO MAINTAIN NET PRICES—DECISION GENERALLY REGARDED AS A VERY IMPORTANT ONE.

By a closely divided court (five to four) the Supreme Court of the United States handed down Monday an interpretation of the patent laws that is regarded as throwing a severe restriction around the application of the court's ruling in the case of Dick vs. Henry, known as the mimeograph case. In that case the right of a patent holder to lease his patented articles with stipulations that they should be used only with unpatented articles manufactured by the patentee was sustained. Monday, in the "Sanatogen case," the court announced as a universal rule that "a patentee who has parted with a patented machine by passing title to a purchaser has placed the article beyond the limits of the monopoly secured by the Patent act."

This decision will affect an enormous number of articles now sold under stipulations fixing the resale price. In this category are safety razors, cameras, talking machines, watches, and clocks, etc., etc., many of which articles are even now the subject of net price litigation. The decision is expected to extend the trade of department stores in those articles at "cut rates"—articles which heretofore have been sold everywhere at one price fixed by the manufacturers.

DECISION PRACTICALLY A REVERSAL.

Justice Day who wrote the decision "distinguished" it from the famous "mimeograph case" of a year ago, but many lawyers who heard the decision regarded the term as a judicial phrase for practically reversing that case. That point may be determined in some future action.

Officials of the Department of Justice regard the decision as of tremendous importance, putting an end to existing widespread extensions of patent monopolies and sharply drawing a line of demarcation between the Sherman anti-trust law and the patent laws. The Department of Justice has contended that where a patentee sells his patented article he loses all control of it and is powerless, especially in view of the Sherman anti-trust law, to establish resale prices. It is noteworthy that a large majority of the net price decisions of the lower courts are now reversed.

Associate Justice Day read the decision of the court. Associate Justices McKenna, Holmes, Lurton, and Van Devanter dissented.

THE CASE.

The opinion was rendered in the case of Bauer & Cie and the Bauer Chemical Company vs. James O'Donnell, on certificate from the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. Bauer & Cie are a corporation of Berlin, Germany, having a contract with F. W. Heh-meyer of New York City, operating as The Bauer Chemical Company, in manufacturing and selling a patented water soluble known as Sanatogen.

The Court of Appeals certified the facts and propounded the following question to the court:

"Did the acts of the appellee in retailing at less than the price fixed in said notice original packages of Sanatogen purchased of jobbers, as aforesaid, constitute infringement of appellant's patent?"

In the opinion, the following line of reasoning was adopted:

"In framing the act (patent statute) and defining the extent of the rights and privileges secured to a patentee Congress did not use technical or occult phrases, but in simple terms gave an inventor the exclusive right to make, use and vend his invention for a definite term of years. The right to make can scarcely be made plainer by definition and embraces the construction of the thing invented. The right to use is a comprehensive term and embraces within its meaning the right to put into service any legitimate invention."

The company issued its patented article in packages warning druggists that they must sell at not less than $1 a package, and that sales at lower prices infringed its patent rights and would render the seller liable to injunction and damages. James O'Donnell of Washington persistently sold the article at less than the dollar price.

DECISION FOLLOWS THAT IN BOBBS-MERRILL v. STRAUS.

In deciding against the right of the vendor of patented articles to control their retail price, the court said it paralleled its decision in the case of Dr. Miles's Medical Company vs. Park & Sons Company in regard to articles not patented. It also closely followed its decision in the case of the Bobbs-Merrill Company vs. Straus, in which it held that a copyright did not enable the publisher of a book to prevent its sale at less than a fixed sum by department stores and others.

Before settling the present case in accordance with those precedents, however, the court carefully explained that the analogy was not precise. The rights which it declared the seller did not have over unpatented goods might be conveyed by statute, said the court, in regard to patented articles. There remained simply the question of what Congress had intended.

"So far as the use of the term 'vend' is concerned the protection intended to be secured is substantially identical. The sale of a patented article is not essentially different from the sale of a book. In each case to vend is to part with a thing for a consideration."

The court said that the inventor has the exclusive right to prescribe the conditions under which his invention or discovery may be used, and when a case comes fairly within the grant of right to use he should be protected by all means fairly within the scope of the statute.

The Straus case did not quite settle the point, because the patent law gives a monopoly in the "use" of a patented article, while the copyright law mentions only the printing and sale of copies.

The Dick case, the court then goes on, was settled strictly on a construction of the patentee's rights to the "use" of the patented article. The mimeograph machine was sold at less than cost, the entire profit of its manufacture coming from the sale of unpatented articles like ink and blotting paper which alone the acquirer of the machine was licensed to use with it. That constitutes the distinction by means of which Monday's opinion misses being a direct reversal or modification of the Dick decision.

NOT A LICENSE.

It would be a "perversion of terms," says Monday's decision, "to call the transaction, that is, the sale of Sanatogen, in any sense a 'license' to use the invention. The jobber from whom the appellee purchased had previously bought, at a price which must be deemed to have been satisfactory, the packages of Sanatogen afterward sold to the appellee. The patentee had no interest in the proceeds of the subsequent sales, no right to any royalty thereon, or to participation in the profit thereof.

"The packages were sold with as full and complete title as any article could have been sold in the open market, excepting only the attempt to limit the sale or use when sold for not less than $1. There was no transfer of a limited right to use this invention, and to call the sale a license to use it is a mere play upon words. The right to vend conferred by the patent law has been exercised, and the added restriction is beyond the protection and purpose of the act.

"This being so, the case is brought within that line of cases in which this court from the beginning has held that a patentee who has parted with a patented machine by passing title to a purchaser has placed the article beyond the limits of the monopoly secured by the patent act."

DECISION AROUSES MUCH COMMENT.

The decision of the Supreme Court will have an important and far-reaching effect on the sale of many patented goods of established reputation, according to New York attorneys. Lawyers engaged in patent and copyright litigation, who were interviewed Tuesday by representatives of the New York Journal of Commerce, which published an extended commentary on the decision, said that public policy required that a purchaser of an article should have the right to sell it at any price he chooses without any restriction. That the decision would be of benefit to consumers was not questioned, and as far as the manufacturers are concerned, the opinion was expressed that they would have to adjust themselves to the new order of things.

CLOSENESS OF DECISION INVITES UNCERTAINTY.

The fact that the Supreme Court stood 5 to 4 in the Bauer case and 4 to three in the Dick mimeograph case (where the majority favored the patentee's contention) indicates, it is said, that the question is a very close one, and court rulings in reference to it are bound to vary. For this reason, patent lawyers declare that it is in the interest of everybody concerned that Congress pass a law clearly defining the rights and privileges of patentees, and in that way settle the question. Until this is done uncertainty will continue to prevail as to the legality of fixed price trading.

"The decision will, of course, disturb some manufacturers," said Arthur von Briesen, who was attorney for Henry in the mimeograph case, "but they will have to adjust their business so as to be within the law. Recently Judge Ray, of the United States District Court, rendered a decision in the Waltham watch case in which he upheld Chas. A. Keene's right to sell the watches at his own prices. In my opinion retail dealers should not be restricted by fixed prices."

CONTRACTS TO MAINTAIN PRICES WILL NOW PROBABLY BE HELD ILLEGAL.

Asked whether a manufacturer of a patented article could make contracts with dealers providing for the price at which the goods are to be sold, Mr. Von Briesen states that such contracts would, in all likelihood, be declared to be in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act as a contractor agreement in restraint of trade. The only remedy a manufacturer has, according to Mr. von Briesen, is to refuse to sell goods to a man who undersells the article.

Samuel R. Betts, another patent attorney, said that Congress ought to enact some legislation on the question of patent rights. He did not favor the passage of the Oldfield bill, but thought that some measure ought to be enacted. Mr. Betts likewise expressed the view that the owners of patents and copyrights had a sufficient monopoly in the protection against competition in the manufacture of the article or the publication of a book without having the right to dictate the price at which the product should be sold by the retailer.

POSSIBILITY OF "AGENCY" EVASION.

It was suggested that the law laid down by the Supreme Court could be evaded by manufacturers of patented articles by their designating retail distributors as "agents." Under this arrangement the title of the article would not pass to the dealer, and under the circumstances the agent could, as a representative of the manufacturers, be free to sell the goods at a fixed price determined by the patentee. It was pointed out, however, that this system would not be feasible in many cases and that other objections may be made to it.

Congressman Oldfield of Arkansas, chairman of the House Committee on Patents, whose bill, directly in accord with the court's decision, is pending before the House, said:

"This decision will affect directly the cost of articles made by manufacturers of from ten to fifteen billion dollars' worth of products. Now that the Supreme Court has said that my bill is right I will attempt to push it through. Heretofore manufacturers of patented articles have been holding the retailer by the throat and forcing him to sell their products at a fixed price. That is not just and the Supreme Court so held."

Oldfield pointed out the Supreme Court decision was a direct reversal of all former decisions by lower courts.

THE SCHEME OF "LICENSES" ANALYZED.

Frank J. Hogan, attorney for O'Donnell, who contended for the points sustained in the decision of the Supreme Court in analyzing the decision said to-day:

"This decision settled for the entire country that patentees have not the right, after selling a patented article, to control by any form of notice or contract the price at which the article may be resold to the general public at retail.

"In recent years the practice has grown up, in a countless variety of manufactured articles protected by patent, of the manufacturer arbitrarily fixing the price at which such articles were 'licensed' for sale to the public and every Federal court sustained the practice and enjoined price reduction, until Justice Barnard and Justice Wright, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in the Bauer Chemical Company case and the Gillette Razor Company case, rendered decisions which were yesterday sustained by the nation's highest tribunal.

"The large department stores in commercial centres of the country have been ineffectually warring against this practice of price control and patent monopoly since 1896, when the first decision sustaining such a right in the patentee was handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals by Justice Lurton, which decision was concurred in by Judge Taft, afterward President.

"The decision affects not only medicines and razors, but talking machines, phonographs and their records, vibrators, typewriters, adding machines, patented gas and electrical fixtures for heating and lighting—in fact, practically all articles that enter into every home and business use.

FINAL DECISION NOT HITHERTO POSSIBLE.

"The attorneys for the large department stores throughout the country have exhausted their ingenuity in an attempt to obtain a decision from the Supreme Court of the United States on this question, the last case of the kind being brought to the Supreme Court by The Fair, one of Chicago's largest department stores, but the case failed of a decision on the merits of the question, being dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

"The Department of Justice became interested in the question taking the view that the matter was a subject of the most far-reaching importance, and the famous 'Mimeograph' decision was rendered. In that case the Supreme Court of the United States upheld the right of patent owners to place restrictions on the nature of articles and attachments to be used on the patented articles they hold.

"While the Supreme Court of the United States, in its decision handed down Monday, did not in terms reverse the 'mimeograph' decision, it is believed that if the exact point involved in the 'mimeograph' case were again presented to the Supreme Court a majority of that court would overrule the doctrine which that case announced."

RESOLUTIONS ON NET PRICE MAINTENANCE.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Stationers' and Publishers' Board of Trade, held May 14th, the following resolution was passed:

"Whereas, We, the members of the Stationers' Board of Trade of New York, are for the most part merchants who have been engaged in selling sundry patented products at a price established by the manufacturer thereof, and our experience in so doing has given us the opportunity to form an opinion as to the wisdom of that policy as a matter of business expediency; and

"Whereas, The attention of the incoming Congress will be directed to the proposed bill as offered in the Sixty-second Congress and known as H.R. 23417, one of the principal provisions of which is intended to forbid this practice in the future; and

"Whereas, The report of the committee of the House of Representatives bearing No. 1161 seeks to justify such provision mainly on the ground that no such practice obtains with reference to unpatented articles, and therefore should not be permitted in connection with patented products; and

"Whereas, In our opinion the right to establish resale prices by manufacturers of all products, whether patented or not, should be recognized by the law as an enlightened commercial principle which would violate no consideration of natural justice, and which would protect the manufacturer, large and small dealer, and consumer alike from the manifest evils of substitution and demoralizing price cutting; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we urge upon our Senators and Representatives, the necessity of defeating any proposed legislation intended to restrict the right of a manufacturer of any product, patented or otherwise, to fix the resale price thereof—we urge that the stability of commercial traffic is more important to the Republic than the preservation of any purely legal abstractions, and we call attention to the fact that the law of supply and demand will inevitably require the establishment of reasonable resale prices as an economic necessity. Furthermore, that we recommend these views as consumers of certain products now marketed by other merchants under the same conditions of which we approve as well as in our capacity of dealers of such articles as we sell in that way."

STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE ENLARGES ITS NAME.

At a Special Term of the Supreme Court of New York State the application for the change of the name of the Stationers' Board of Trade to the Stationers & Publishers Board of Trade, Inc. was filed, same having been duly verified by Mr. Henry C. Bainbridge, its President. Upon motion of attorneys—Messrs. Hastings & Gleason, the order was therefore granted upon said petition authorizing them to use the name of The Stationers & Publishers Board of Trade, Inc., on and after the 21st day of this month.

PART THREE OF HUTH SALE.

THE third portion of the Huth Library, E to H, comprising 1,335 lots, will be sold in London, by Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, June 2 to 6 and 9 to 12. This part contains a wealth of English poetry and drama, early German and Spanish books, Americana, and a long series of Books of Hours, manuscript and printed. Among the few Continental Incunabula, or books printed before 1500, says the N.Y. Evening Post, are a fine copy of the first edition of Homer (Florence, 1488), with all the preliminary leaves; two books of Wolfram von Eschenbach, the "Partzifal" and "Tyturell" (Strasburg, 1477); the first edition of Euclid (Augsburg, Ratdolt, 1482), and the first edition of the "Gesta Romanorum" (about 1472). A series of editions of the "Eulenspiegel"; two editions of Escobar's "Quatrocientos Repuestas"; two editions of the "Toison d'Or" (1517 and 1530); a collection of the editions of the works of Erasmus; and the first Aldine Horace (1501) are other notable items from Continental presses.

The English books begin with Gower's "Confessio Amantis," printed by Caxton, in 1483, but with fifteen leaves in facsimile. Of about the same date is the St. Albans Chronicle "Fructus Temporum, or the Fruit of Times," the first edition, and the only copy known printed on vellum. These are followed by the first editions of Hilton's "Scala Perfectionis" or "Ladder of Perfection," printed by Wynkyn de Worde in 1494, and the same printer's edition of Higden's "Policronicon," printed in 1495. The first of these contains an account of the book, in verse, of which the following are the most interesting lines:

Infynite laude wyth thankynges many folde
I yelde to god, me socouryng wyth his grace
This boke to finyshe whiche that ye beholde
Scale of perfection calde in every place
Whereof thauctor Walter Hilton was,
And Wynkyn de Worde this hath set in prynt
In Willyam Caxtons hows so fyll the case
God rest his soule.

Among other books from De Worde's press are Hawes's "Example of Virtue" (1530), several of Bishop Fisher's sermons, and a unique poetical piece, "The Four Leaves of Truelove." The first edition in English of Froissart's "Chronicles" has both volumes from Pynson's press and is described as a fine large copy. The first edition of Foxe's "Acts and Monuments of these Latter and Perillous Dayes, touching Matters of the Church" (1563), generally known as the "Book of Martyrs," is a book of the greatest rarity when perfect, though imperfect copies are readily come by. The Huth copy lacks no leaves, though two of the separate woodcuts are slightly defective. John Heywood's "The Spider and the Flie" (1556) and the same author's "Works," editions of 1576, 1587, and 1598; a series of first or early editions of the writings of Robert Greene, Gabriel Harvey, George Gascoigne, Abraham Fraunce, and Stephen Gosson and the first editions of the Chronicles of Grafton Hall, Harding, and Hollinshed are notable sixteenth century English books. The Huth copy of George Herbert's "The Temple" is one of two known examples with a specially printed title-page, without date, perhaps prepared for presentation. Herrick's "Hesperides" (1648); Hookes's "Amanda" (1653); Hannay's "The Nightingale Sheretine and Mariana" (1622); Fletcher's "Purple Island" (1633), on large paper; Gordon's "Famous Historie of Robert the Bruce" (1615), and several early editions of Chapman's Homer, are a selection from many important volumes of English verse.

Many notable items of Americana are included in this sale, chief among them the original quarto edition of Thomas Harriot's "Briefe and True Report of the New Found Land of Virginia" (1588), the first book in the English language relating to any country comprised within the present United States. There are two copies in this country, one in the New York Public Library, the other owned successively by Kalbfleisch, Lefferts and Church, in the Henry E. Huntington collection. "A Relation or Journal of the Beginning and Proceedings of the English Plantation Settled at Plimoth in New England" (1620), generally known as "Mourt's Relation," is slightly less rare though scarcely of less interest. Higginson's "New Englands Plantation" (1630); Hubbard's "Present State of New England" (1677); "A Good Speed to Virginia" (1609), attributed to Robert Gray, and Hilton's "Relation of a Discovery lately made on the Coast of Florida" (1664), actually the first book on South Carolina, are other thin volumes which are now much sought after by the Americana collectors. Older books of importance are the "Globus Mundi" (1509), Enciso's "Suma de Geographia" (1519), and Hakluyt's "Voyages," editions of 1589 and 1599-1600.

FREE WOOD PULP FROM ALL COUNTRIES.

THE customs court decided, May 12th, that European nations were entitled to the free entry of wood pulp and paper under the "most favored nation clause" of their commercial treaties with the United States because the free entry privilege was granted to Canada under the only operative clause of the Canadian reciprocity agreement.

The court also held that the Treasury Department had placed a correct interpretation upon the Canadian reciprocity act by immediately admitting wood pulp and paper free without reciprocal action by Canada. Dissenting opinions were delivered.

Norway, Russia, Austria-Hungary and Germany claimed the right of free entry of wood pulp and paper from their respective countries. Former President Taft declined to grant the request and referred the question to the courts.

It has been the attitude of the government to oppose all appeals from the customs court because the act creating the court says the decision of the customs court shall be final, but the fact that the question involves the interpretation of treaties may cause the government to appeal.

BRESLOW BOOK SHOP MOVES.

BRESLOW'S BOOK SHOP, formerly at 20 E. 30th Street, New York City, has moved into new quarters at 123 E. 23d Street. In an attractive circular announcement of the removal, headed "The Evolution of the Book Shop," Mr. Breslow says.

"Even the second-hand book shop has kept step with the march of progress.

"The old and more or less picturesque book shop with its hopeless confusion, its pell mell of unclassified and dust-covered books is fast disappearing.

"The confusion of the old bookshop was often reflected in the queer doings of the proprietor. Civility was not predominant and the price of a book often increased with the customer's anxiety to obtain it.

"The Breslow Book Shop will retain all the charm that inheres to a large and ever changing collecting of all books covering the whole field of human interest. The reasonable prices will no doubt have a charm all their own.

"In other respects all disagreeable vestiges of the traditional book shop are eliminated. Visitors will feel at liberty to call as often and remain as long as they please, without feeling under any obligation to purchase."

NEW GOSPEL MANUSCRIPT, FOUND SIX YEARS AGO, PUBLISHED.

THE London Times recently published the "first detailed account" of the manuscripts of the Gospels discovered in Egypt six years ago and purchased by Charles L. Freer, of Detroit, by whose direction a fac-simile has now been produced. A copy has been presented to the British Museum by the University of Michigan, to which Mr. Freer assigned the task of publication, which was put into the hands of Prof. H. A. Sanders. The discovery turns out to be of enormous value, as the text contains a passage in St. Mark that has been missing since the days of the Early Church. The Freer papyri, which dates from either the fourth or fifth century, must have been copied from a number of distinct manuscripts. The most notable change in St. Matthew is the agreement in certain places with the Vaticanus and Sinaiticus versions against practically all the other authorities. This agreement, in St. Luke, is marked, but in St. Mark (placed last) the character of the manuscript fluctuates, and it has several readings in which it stands alone, or almost alone.

But the most remarkable peculiarity of the manuscript is reserved for the end. Like the great mass of manuscripts, but unlike the earliest of them, it contains an appendix known as the last twelve verses of St. Mark, which in our Revised Version are given a position detached from the rest of the Gospel, but in the middle of this passage it inserts some verses which occur in no other known manuscript of the New Testament, although they were known to St. Jerome, who quotes part of them.

BRIGHT colors have much the same effect upon the eye that bright music has upon the ear. Both cheer up. Brighten up your store all you can. It makes it easier to sell goods.

SOME USEFUL THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT ENGRAVING.

PREPARE COPY CAREFULLY, AS POOR ENGRAVING OFTEN IS DUE TO POOR ORIGINALS—COLOR VALUES AND HOW THEY REPRODUCE IN HALFTONE—THINGS TO REMEMBER ABOUT LINE CUTS.

THE two kinds of engraving in general use says A. S. Wilson in Printers' Ink, are the halftone and the zinc-etching.

The first question to come up is the kind of copy to use. For halftone work photographs, wash drawings, oil paintings or the actual article itself may be used. For zinc-etchings, line drawings, printed pages, or any copy in which the lines are worked out with the pen and not the brush.

It sometimes happens that the copy is in both line and wash. The engraving made from such copy is called a combination plate. A halftone negative is made from the wash and a line negative of the line, both negatives being printed on the same flat, arranged, of course, in the same relative position as in the original drawing and etched down the same as an ordinary halftone.

Care should be taken in examining copy before it is sent to the engraver, as much of the poor printing qualities of plates can be traced to defects in the original drawing. It therefore would not be amiss to take up the various kinds of copy separately.

Photographs are, as a rule, retouched before being used for engraving purposes. Examine carefully to see that the artist has used the same tone of color as that in other portions of the photographs. The average commercial artist does not take into consideration the mechanical difficulties in the making of engravings and assumes that if the appearance of his work is satisfactory, that is sufficient.

For instance, if to get a middle tone, or in other words, a gray-black, the artist has mixed, say, a blue with his black to get this tone, the result when reproduced will be a much lighter tone in that spot than in other portions of the photograph. While the color may look all right at a casual inspection, if the photograph is held on a slant so that the light strikes it at an angle, the difference in tone can always be detected. Never allow blue to be used in any way, as it always reproduces light. Avoid bluish tints in any kind of copy for reproduction.

Do not use a rough or matte finish photograph, as the roughness of the paper is faithfully reproduced in the halftone. The best results are obtained from a smooth finish or gloss photograph of a sepia or reddish tint, those known as Solio prints being the best.

Of wash drawings the most important point is to see that they have "snap," or in other words, good, strong contrasts of lights and shadows. In the making of the average halftone, of necessity some of the detail of the drawing is lost. The blacks blending more quickly into the middle tones and the middle tones into the whites, resulting in a plate which is called "flat." Such a plate may be improved by hand-tooling, re-etching and burnishing, but it is better to insist on good, strong, "contrasty" copy in the first place, even if the color values have been somewhat exaggerated.

Oil paintings are usually in color. It is seldom, if ever, that a black and white drawing is made in oil. A halftone cannot be made direct from a color drawing, as the several colors do not photograph in their proper values; blue, for instance, tending toward the white and yellow toward the black. If a halftone is wanted of a subject in color an orthochromatic negative and print should be made and the halftone made from that.

The direct process of engraving, or in other words, the making of halftones direct from the article itself, is not in general use. The reason for this is, when the article is set up in front of the ordinary camera for making the halftone negative, no adjustment of the lights can overcome the shadows thrown on and around the article. It is possible, however, to overcome this difficulty by the use of a vertical camera, which most engraving plants have. Beautiful work is possible by this method. If this process is desired it is good policy to employ an engraver making a specialty of such work, as not all plants can produce perfect work.

The screen to specify in ordering your halftone depends altogether upon the class of work for which the plate is to be used. The different screens range from the sixty or eighty-five line for newspaper work to the two hundred line for booklet work in which very fine paper is used. The one hundred and thirty-three line screen is the one in general use for magazines and ordinary booklets. One hundred and fifty line screen halftones can be used in booklet work where good enameled or supercalendered paper is used, but it is not advisable to order that screen for a halftone to be used in the magazines.

Halftones may be finished square, with or without line; silhouette or vignette. A square halftone is one with the background extending to or beyond the extreme edge of the subject and finished off straight with or without a line around it. A silhouette halftone is one in which the background has been entirely cut away. A vignette halftone is one in which the background gradually fades away. Copy is usually prepared in such a way that it can be seen which style to order.

Halftones can be greatly improved by having them hand-tooled. By tooling the high lights are brought out sharp and clear, and if the work has been properly done the final result is much better than that of a plate which has not been tooled.

Copy for zinc-etchings of, as they are usually called, line cuts, should be in clear, black ink. It should be remembered that zinc-etchings are perfect reproductions of the original, and if a printed page is to be reproduced be sure that none of the type is broken or blurred.

Color values cannot be obtained in a zinc cut by making the lines of the drawing weak or gray. These values can only be obtained by shading—making the lines heavy or fine, as the case may be. If the zinc-etching is to be used for newspaper work, too fine lines should be avoided, as they fill up and run together in printing.

In reproducing typewritten letters do not use copy made from a colored ribbon or made on a colored paper. Red and yellow photograph black, while blue and purple come almost white. It is evident that a letter written in purple on a yellow paper would be impossible to reproduce. Have all typewritten letters intended for reproductions re-written in black on white paper.

In ordering your engravings, either line cuts or halftones, specify both dimensions whenever possible. The proportion to which the copy will come may be ascertained by the following method: Extend a line from the lower left-hand corner of the copy through the upper right-hand corner and beyond if necessary. If the width is given, to find the height, measure off the width on the lower edge of the copy from the left-hand corner and from this point extend a vertical line until it meets the diagonal. The length of this line from where it touches the diagonal to the lower edge of the drawing is the height to which the copy will reduce or enlarge, as the case may be.

If the height is given, to find the width, measure off the height from the lower edge of the drawing to the diagonal and from the point where this line touches the diagonal extend a line to the left-hand edge of the drawing. This line is the width to which the copy will reduce or enlarge.

Copy for both line cuts and halftones should be larger than the size of the plate desired. If the plate is an enlargement of copy any slight defects in the drawing will be brought out more prominently, whereas if the plate is smaller than the original such defects are not as noticeable. It is best to have the copy at least twice the size of the finished plate.

The fact should be borne in mind that engravings are exact reproductions of copy. Any defects appearing in the original copy will necessarily be in the finished plate. In the end much time and money will be saved by sending only perfect copy to the engraver, and the solution of your engraving troubles is: examine your copy carefully and have it right before it leaves your hands.

TRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE SCHOOL

THE next and final meeting, for the season of the Booksellers' League's School for Salesmen will be held Wednesday, June 4th, at 7 o'clock, at the new quarters of E. P. Dutton and Company, 681 Fifth Avenue, between 53d and 54th streets. This cordial sign of interest in the school movement by prominent booksellers, like Brentano's and Dutton's is one of the encouraging features of the work.

In selecting speakers for the Booksellers' School stress has hitherto been laid on the sale of books and the conduct of the book business. The School is now to proceed to discuss the actual production of a book; E. Byrne Hackett, Manager of the Yale University Press, will speak on Making a Book. Mr. Hackett has been one of the lecturers in the course on printing at Harvard University.

However clever a salesman may be, and no matter how well he may know the contents of a book, it is highly desirable that he understand how a volume is manufactured. Building a book is as fascinating as writing one; it stirs the imagination to consider the possibilities that lie in paper, type, illustrating, printing and binding, the fundamentals of bookmaking technique.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE Bancroft Whitney Company of San Francisco announce the death of Frederick Peter Stone, president of the company from 1894 to 1913.

JOHN SERGEANT WISE, soldier and prominent member of the New York bar, died from heart trouble at 1.30 o'clock, on May 12th, near Princess Anne, Md. He was the author of "Diomed" (1898); "The Life, Travels and Observations of a Dog," "The End of an Era," (1899); "The Lion's Skin," (1905); "Recollections of Thirteen Presidents," (1906) and "Citizenship," (190).

PERIODICAL NOTES.

THE Hardware Reporter, St. Louis, will be consolidated with Iron Age-Hardware, New York City, the change to take effect May 15.

THE first instalment of "The Coryston Family," a new serial by Mrs. Humphry Ward, appears in Harper's Magazine for May. It is a novel of to-day, and is described as "a love story pure and simple."

THE publishers of Vogue have purchased Dress from McCreedy Beals Company, of New York, and will consolidate with it Vanity Fair, which they have purchased from the Beeman Company. Dress will be edited to appeal to men as well as women.

E. C. DE VILLAVARDE, who was advertising manager of Smart Set magazine for some years previous to its purchase by John Adams Thayer, has become secretary of the Storytellers' Company, publishers of The Storytellers' Magazine, a new periodical for those interested in stories for children.

ROBERT FROTHINGHAM resigned, May 10, as advertising manager of Everybody's Magazine. He has held that position for eight years and for a period of about three years was advertising manager of the Butterick Trio, having assumed that position at the time the Butterick Company and the Ridgway Company, associated themselves together. Before going with Everybody's, Mr. Frothingham was advertising manager of Life. It is announced that no successor to Mr. Frothingham has been appointed.

THE first installment of "Little Pictures of O. Henry" appears in The Bookman for June, with the subtitle "Born and Raised in No'th Ca'llina." Arthur W. Page is the author. Part IV of Algernon Tassin's "The Grub Street Problem" concerns the days of Dr. Johnson as they affected the scribe from the money standpoint. In the "Literary Baedeker," Arthur B. Maurice describes, in the first installment, "London and Rural England." "Some Modern Dutch Etchers," by Cleveland Palmer, and "G. K. Chesterton as an Artist," by Joseph

B. Gilder are other articles of interest. Among the fourteen books reviewed this month are "V.V.'s Eyes," "Stella Maris" and "Zone Policeman 88."

A $250,000 libel suit was begun in the United States District Court, May 17th, by E. A. Strout, president of the Strout Farm Agency, against the Rural Publishing Company of 409 Pearl Street, publishers of the Rural New Yorker, a magazine devoted to agricultural interests. In its column devoted to "Rogues and Swindlers" the Rural New Yorker on January 18, 1913, ran a letter signed "J. E.," in which the writer says that he bought a farm through the agency in Bucks County, Pa., and after paying $3,000 for the land found that the farmer had sold it to the agency for $2,000. The article went on to say that the Rural New Yorker refused to handle the Strout advertising matter because the magazine did not want to receive tainted money. William W. Leister, representative of the land agency in Quakertown, Pa., has also begun an action to recover $25,000 from the Rural Publishing Company on the ground that they besmirched his character in the column devoted to "Rogues and Swindlers."

LITERARY & TRADE NOTES.

"A PRISONER IN FAIRYLAND," by Algernon Blackwood, is a forthcoming Macmillan novel.

LUCE & COMPANY have just published "Married," the novel which first made Strindberg's reputation.

THE Bookmen's Annual Field Day Outing is to be held on Friday, June 20th, at the Hinsdale Golf Club, Chicago.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL Co., of Indianapolis, Ind., was this week unanimously elected a member of The Stationers' Board of Trade.

THE Oxford University Press has published a selection of the Poems of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, on thin paper, with green and gold binding, and in pocket size.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have in press a catalogue of rare and fine imported books at low prices. The catalogue will be sent free on application.

THE New York office of the H. W. Wilson Co., Minneapolis, has removed to 141 East 25th St. in association with the office of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

SIR WILLIAM OSLER's Silliman lectures on "The Evolution of Modern Medicine," which he is now giving at Yale University, will be published later in book form by the Yale University Press.

A FEW extra copies of the Bookseller's Convention number of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY can be obtained at the publication office. Dealers who would like to distribute copies among employees should write promptly for a supply.

DR. LEWIS GASTON LEARY has just sailed for the Mediterranean, the principal object of his trip being to procure the latest available data on Syria for his forthcoming volume, "Syria, the Land of Lebanon," which McBride, Nast & Co. will publish this fall.

JOHN A. HOLDEN, Business Manager of PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY office will attend the Chicago Book Fair. He leaves New York June 9th on a "get acquainted" trip along the line of the New York Central, arriving at Palmer House about June 18th.

"Our Little Bulgarian Cousin," by Clara Vo trovsky Winlow, is just published in L. C. Page's established Little Cousin Series. The unusual interest at present in the downfall of Turkey and the success of the allied Balkan and Greek forces makes this little volume especially timely.

"THE New Tendency in Art," a little book by Henry R. Poore, dealing with the incomprehensible developments of Post Impressionism, Cubism and Futurism is just published by Doubleday, Page & Co. It is described as "a little book for those who would like to know."

WYCIL & COMPANY, New York, have become Eastern representatives for the writings of Jane W. Yarnall; notable among which are "Practical Healing for Mind and Body," which has passed through seven editions, and "The Good Time Coming." These books will be sold at net prices with discount to the trade only.

Two important Riccardi Press books are announced—"The Canterbury Tales," with thirty-six water colors by Russell Flint, Vol. I (to be followed by Vols. II and III in the autumn), and "Marius the Epicurean," in two volumes, the first long work to be set in the new "11-point" of H. P. Horne's Riccardi type.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY has just published "The House of Thane" by Elizabeth Dejeans and "Lo Michael!" by Grace L. H. Lutz. The former novel is called a portrayal of the "modern pirate." The latter is the story of a newsboy's rise to a position of importance—a novel primarily, not involving any Socialistic doctrine.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish immediately "The Statesman's Year Book" for 1913. It constitutes the jubilee volume, the annual having been founded fifty years ago. An interesting feature is an attempt in the introductory matter and in the maps to indicate the contrast in certain aspects of the States of the world between then and now.

HENRY SOTHERAN & Co., of London, have just published an illustrated catalogue of the Browning relics, listing interesting items from the recent sale—including books with autograph inscriptions, valuable unpublished manuscripts, a portrait of Browning by his son, personal relics and objects of art—as well as beautiful old engravings, Nelson autographs, etc., from other sources.

"LANAGAN, AMATEUR DETECTIVE," on the point of publication by Sturgis & Walton Company, contains a series of stories, all with the same protagonist, narrating the adventures of Lanagan, the nonchalant, imperturbable Bohemian, drinker of innumerable drinks and smoker of countless cigarettes, a man of iron with a heart as tender as a woman's, who first made his appearance in Collier's Weekly.

"CUBISM," by MM. Albert Gleizes and Jean Metzinger, published on May 5th, by T. Fisher Unwin, of London, is a statement of the objects and defence of the methods of Cubism by two leading members of the school. It is illustrated by many reproductions of the work of Cubist painters and will no doubt prove enlightening to the masses.

MR. HEINEMANN, of London, published on May 8th "Plays of Old Japan," by Dr. M. C. Stopes, of London University. This is an account of the "No" dramas, the national plays of Japan. They hold the same position in that country that Shakespeare does in this. Dr. Stopes has also translated four of the plays into English.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY plan to publish in the autumn, "Athens, the Violet-Crowned," a book of travel by Lilian Whiting. It is said that Miss Whiting's book will be up-to-date, as she observed the effect of the war in the Balkans on the Greeks, and furthermore she was present in Athens during the assassination and funeral of the late King. She brought back with her a collection of pictures which will be reproduced in her book.

MESSRS. CONSTABLE, of London, have ready for immediate publication "Air Resistance and Aviation," from the French of G. Eiffel, who owns the famous experimental laboratory at Auteuil, near Paris. There are a large number of diagrams and plates, several photographs, and numerous tables of figures. The translation is the work of J. C. Hunsaker, of the U. S. Navy Yard, Boston, himself an authority on aviation.

HUGH WALPOLE, whose "Maradick at Forty" and "The Gods and Mr. Perrin," showed no little insight has written another novel which promises to take its place among the worth-while books—"Fortitude," published by Doran. Cornwall and its people are discovered in this romance, which shows humor, understanding and a courageous philosophy.

MESSRS. LONGMANS, of London, hope to publish shortly a shilling volume entitled "The Britannic Question," by Mr. Richard Jebb. In this little book the author of "Studies in Colonial Nationalism" develops the conception of alliance-in-perpetuity as a form of closer union more appropriate than Imperial Federation to the self-governing countries of the British Empire. The book deals directly with those Imperial problems which are now pressing in Canada and elsewhere.

"EMINENT ENGLISH MEN AND WOMEN IN PARIS" (Scribners) is an entertaining book, not without a genuine historical and political significance. Its author is Roger Boutet de Monvel, and it was crowned by the French Academy in 1912. It is bounded by the years 1800 and 1850, and deals perhaps mainly with the English prisoners and visitors during the Napoleonic reign, and with the great flock of those that crossed the channel upon its collapse at Waterloo.

GEORGE W. BRICKA, 114-16 East 28th Street, New York, announces for publication on June 2d "Posters, a Critical Study of the Development of Poster Design in Continental Europe, England and America," by Charles Matlack Price. The volume contains 42 reproductions in color and 120 in monotone, representing the best work of leading poster artists. It is published in de luxe form in an edition limited to 250 copies. The text is a critical, analytical discussion of the history and development of poster art from its inception to the present time.

"JOYOUS GARD," by Arthur Christopher Benson, which the Putnams are about to publish, recommends a studied quietness and a cheerful serenity of life. The circumstances under which it was written are, therefore, all the more interesting. The author thus describes its production: "I have put my feelings to a vigorous test, by writing it, not when I was at ease and in leisure, but in the very thickest and fullest of my work. I thought that if the kind of quiet I recommended had any force or weight at all, it should be the sort of quiet which I still could realize and value in a life full of engagements and duties and business."

HENRY HOLT AND COMPANY will extend their spring publishing season into early June this year and still have some four books for general readers to issue, besides the three which they issue to-day. One of these is an authorized translation of Rupin's standard work, "Die Juden der Gegenwart" ("The Jews of To-day") from the second revised edition of the original with an introduction of some length by Dr. Joseph Jacobs. Another, "The World Soul," by H. Fielding-Hall, who explains a philosophy of life of strong appeal to many who are not satisfied with the philosophies and theologies of the day. The third book is Knight and Step's "Popular Botany."

THE Bobbs-Merrill Co. are reminding booksellers that the hundreds of people with the MacGrath habit are looking for a chance to separate themselves from $1.30. "Parrot & Co." being now published, the bookseller is in a position to be obliging. A mysterious young American is the typical MacGrathian hero of this typical MacGrathian story. He has been engineer, stevedore, deck steward, haberdasher and mine superintendent. For years he has mingled with the flotsam and jetsam of decadent Oriental society. But despite his checkered career he has remained, above all, a gentleman—young enough to dare, old enough to love, and experienced enough to understand. And therein lies the story!

THE baseball game between Thos. Nelson Sons and The Baker & Taylor Co., at Emerson Field, 207th St. and Broadway, on Saturday, May 10, resulted in a decided victory for The Baker & Taylor Co.'s team. The feature of the game was the pitching of Moseman for The B. & T. Co., who struck out eleven men and passed but one. The score by innings was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R.	H.	E.
The B. & T. Co.	9	0	4	2	2	3	1	2	4	—	27	27
T. Nelson Sons	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	1	—	4	6

Two-Base Hits—Sullivan, Three-Base Hit—Brown. Home Runs—Brown, Ruiz. Stolen Bases—Woods, 3; Ebert, 2; Brown, 1; Mose-man, 2; Sulzer, 2; Crande, 1; Fellows, 1. Left on Bases—B. & T., 7; Nelson, 3. Base on Balls—Off Moseman, 1; off Ellis, 7. Struck Out—By Moseman, 11; by Ellis, 8. Time of Game, 2 hrs. and 25 min.

MR. COBDEN-SANDERSON, of the well-known "Doves Press," at Hammersmith, announces the abandonment of his scheme for the publication of a series of Shakespeare volumes, which will not now be carried further than the Three Roman Plays and the Poems. One reason for this alteration of plan will be received with regret—namely, the "not remote closure of the Press." The reason for this is the growing strain of reading, revising, and passing the printed sheets, work which, with the designing of the books, is peculiarly his own. This has grown of late with an increasing pace in the grey twilight of our wintry weather. He is thus "constrained to forgo at last the delight of projects which seemed ever to multiply with the work and the years"; and "to adjust his eyes to other scenes and his hopes to far other projects." There are, however, to be some final publications of the Doves Press, which "shall serve as far as possible to round off the range of thought and expression comprised in the publications of the Press and the variety of the problems whose solution it has been the primary object of the Press to achieve."

E. P. DUTTON & COMPANY announce that they have acquired the Thompson Brown Company business as a foundation for the establishment of an Educational Department. This company, founded in 1844, is said to be the oldest company in America which has been engaged exclusively in the publication of educational books. Among the well known titles on its lists are the new Cushing's Manual which it originally published in 1844, The Nichols Arithmetics, The Metcalf-Call Readers, The Elson-Macmillan History Series, and many other elementary texts. The present organization, Johnson, Blagden & McTurnan, controlling the Thompson Brown Company, will be maintained with the present Branch Offices. It is intended that the publications of the old concern, which were mostly confined to books for elementary grades, shall be increased so as to include books for the use of secondary schools and colleges. Such titles from the list of E. P. Dutton & Company as are immediately available will be adapted to school and college requirements and will be placed upon the educational list. The headquarters for this new branch will be at the new Dutton offices, 681 Fifth Avenue.

In response to the steadily increasing demand for Scandinavian literature, the American-Scandinavian Foundation have decided to issue a series of Scandinavian classics, suitable in form for colleges and universities and for public and private libraries. The volumes will be chosen by a committee of scholars with special knowledge of the field, and will be rendered into English by competent translators. The committee plan to make the series broadly representative of Scandinavian literature, and to include some of the best books of popular interest along with works that may meet the requirements of students. The list at present contains the Eddas, Holberg's comedies, Björnson's plays, lyrics, and letters, the works of Tegnér, Runeberg, Drachmann, and Herman Bang, as well as of several living writers, still quite unknown to American readers. It is possible that the first book of the series, which will be issued in 1914, will be three of Holberg's comedies. The Foundation has also under consideration the publication of a series of learned monographs on Scandinavian subjects. An English version of "Danmarks Heltedigtning," by Dr. Axel Olrik, will possibly begin this series.

BUSINESS NOTES.

How to organize and conduct our economic institutions, strongly intrenched as they are in privilege and power, so that their benefits may be more justly shared by all the members of society is the problem of work. Recognizing selfishness as the heart of the industrial competitive system, this book renounces attempts to moralize it, and finds the direct road towards a solution of the problem through social legislation, backed by enlightened public opinion and promoting the welfare of society as a whole.

Author says, "we are in the grasp of a potential syndicate of solvent functions and nothing but the destruction of capitalism will break the strangle-hold and deliver us from financial absolutism and industrial dependence." Five per cent. are above the line of average wealth, two per cent on the line, and ninety-three per cent. below. The propertied five per cent. are the private owners of economic fundamentals, while the ninety-three per cent. are the industrial producers of these fundamentals, a condition author thinks avoidable and economically unjustifiable. Janis, Elsie. Love letters of an actress. N. Y., Appleton. c. 97 p. D. $1 n.

Love story told in form of letters received and written by a popular American actress. It is not a love story in the sense of two people meeting and marrying happily, but rather the record of the men who loved the actress, no one of whom was "Mr. Right." The character of the different men is revealed by their letters, while her point of view, her hopes, ideals and ambitions are shown in her replies.

Purpose is to set forth as accurately and fully as possible the conditions of vice as they existed in New York City during the year 1912. It is a dispassionate, objective account of things as they were during the period of investigation; the forms which commercialized vice had assumed, the methods by which it was carried on, the whole network of relations which had been elaborated below the surface of society. The data upon which the study is based are the information secured by careful, reliable, and experienced investigators, whose work was corroborated in every case.

Story of a civilian who leaves his office, his wife, and family, and marches out to a present-day war. Mechanical invention has stripped the glory from the "field of honor" and turned it into a shamble. No longer does one man match his bravery, skill and strength against another, man but whole regiments are mowed down at once by huge shells and dynamite. This is the tale's burden "the horror of the mechanics of modern warfare."

"Mr. Pratt" is again the central figure. The old Cape Codder is now hired man, major domo, and general advice dispenser of a private sanitarium. At the head of the institution is Dr. Lysander P. Wool, who is swindling Miss Emmelene Adams, a wealthy spinster. Eureka Sparrow, her maid, Lot Deacon, an old suitor, and Mr. Pratt are the means of unearthing the fraud in which a harmless professor is also involved. How it all comes about is told with much humor.

London, Jack. The abysmal brute. N. Y., Century Co. c. 169 p. front. D. $1 n.

A young prize fighter, trained by his father in the woods, goes into the game without suspecting the cheating and graft in it, and his manager keeps the knowledge from him. He is rising to the place of world champion when a girl reporter opens his eyes. He begins a big fight by a speech to the audience, telling them what he has found out, knocks out the champion with one blow and wins the match in one round, whereas the management had arranged it to last to the fourteenth, betting accordingly, and causes a riot in the arena. Then he retires from the game, with the girl.

Low, Ivy. Growing pains; a novel. N. Y., Doran. 8+300 p. D. $1.20 n.

Gertrude Wilson is the heroine, and the book relates her development from childhood to womanhood. Her questions and doubts, her schoolgirl devotion to an older girl, her dreams of life, seekings after their realization, and then the awakening, when real love and happiness come. There is much charm in the relation and the reader learns how empty is existence without a definite object.

Miller, H: Russell. The ambition of Mark. Truitt. Indianapolis, Ind., Bobbs-Merrill. c. 454 p. D. $1.35 n.

By author of "The man higher up." Traces hero's career from his leaving the little village of his birth and going to the city where he began with pick and shovel and ended as partner in a big steel company. He marries a village girl ambitious for social success and after years of misery she divorces him. Another woman who gives all for love is a strong force in his development and in strengthening his character so that he gives up the unfeeling struggle for wealth, goes back to his village, where he plans a model city and steel mill. Happiness crowns his efforts.

Novel of married life from a new viewpoint. The man did not want to marry, in fact feared the responsibilities, yet he took the step on the blind impulse of passion. At first they are happy, particularly after their child is born, then the little boy dies, and there is never another baby. By degrees they settle down into a humdrum existence in which they have neither affection nor liking for each other, merely a tolerance and desire not to be disturbed in the even tenor of their ways.

Wilsam: goods driven ashore where no wreck or ship is visible, hence called goods of God's mercy. A wait cast up by the sea on the Kentish coast is the heroine. She finds relatives, one a feeble-minded aunt with whom she lives, others a grasping uncle and his wife, and their two sons. She grows into girlhood and womanhood, marrying one of her cousins, and always through her life there is the deep murmur of an undercurrent of tragedy and always she justifies the title Wilsam. Setting is a vivid picture of the coast of Kent and the hop country.

Onions, Oliver. The debit account. N. Y., Doran, c. 5+9-296 p. D. $1.25 n.

In his previous book, "In accordance with the evidence," author told of the bringing to justice privately of an utterly unworthy man. Here Jeffries takes up his story at the point of his marriage with the dead man's fiancée. Like the earlier book, the tale is told in a diary, it records his wordly success, his feeling of absolute innocence and justification, and then the beginning of jealousy on his wife's part for the one person, a woman, who has guessed his secret. In the end the debt comes in for a heavy settlement.

Applies the principles set down in his "Philosophy of loyalty" to Christianity. Part 1 is a study of the human empirical aspect of some of the leading and essential ideas of Christianity. Part 2 deals with the technically metaphysical problems to which these ideas give rise. Methods are contrasted, first part discussing religious experience, second dealing with its metaphysical foundations. At the close the relations between the metaphysical and empirical aspects of the whole are reviewed. Index.

Van Vorst, Marie. His love story; il. by Howard Chandler Christy. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill. c. 284 p. D. $1.20 n.

Captain Le Comte de Sabron, was poor, with nothing but his profession, so he determined never to fall in love, as he could not afford to marry. He reckoned without lovely Julia Redmond, an American girl visiting her aunt, for as soon as he saw her he lost his heart. Anyway he need not tell his love, and he rode off to Algiers and fighting. Then he was badly wounded and lost in the desert, and Julia went to find him and did it, which quite changed his resolution about marrying.

Walpole, Hugh. Fortitude; being a true and faithful account of the education of an adventurer. N. Y., Doran. c. 484 p. D. $1.40 n.

"It is not life that matters, but the courage you bring to it," this is the keynote of Peter Westcott's life. Brought up in Cornwall with no love in his home, all his affection centered on Stephan Brant, a farmer; he at last quarrels with his father and goes to London. Here he works in a bookshop, lives in cheap lodgings and makes friends, but always he is a boy, never really grown up, using the devotion of his friends, appreciating it, but forgetting it when he no longer needs them, always, also is the struggle of his inherited baseness to overcome his better nature. It takes an unhappy marriage and a great grief to bring Peter to a man's stature with courage to fight on.

INDIA PAPER

Was for many years used only for Bible Work. To-day it is recognized as the best material on which to print large reference books, catalogs and set work where a minimum of bulk and weight is desired. The compactness thus obtained means much to the ultimate user.

Our extensive experience, our special equipment and the organization we have established for this work, places us in a position to handle such propositions to the best advantage.

It will pay you to consider us.

PART III NOW READYTHE PROFESSION of BOOKSELLING*By A. GROWOLL

Late Managing Editor of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY

8vo. Boards. Price $2

MR. GROWOLL was by temperament and training an ideal bookman. His many years as editorial manager of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY kept him in close touch with every phase of book production and book selling. He had the art in perfection of imparting knowledge and giving advice on every aspect of the booksellers' problem. He was indeed the Little Schoolmaster of the profession, and this posthumous volume, planned during life, rounds out his study of the complete bookseller.

Contents of Part III:

- Chap. I. The Correspondence Department. 3 divisions.
 - Chap. II. The Salesman. 2 divisions.
 - Chap. III. The Store Boy.
 - Chap. IV. Subscription Book Business. 4 divisions.

THE HOUSE OF THANE

A vital portrayal of the modern pirate, a subtle study of the emotions, an even more absorbing novel of the American scene than THE FAR TRIUMPH.

Three illustrations in color by F. C. JOHN. Jacket, in green and gold.
12mo, cloth, $1.25 net; Postpaid $1.37

A Strong Sociological Love Story"LO MICHAEL!"

BY

GRACE L. H. LUTZAuthor of "MARCIA SCHUYLER," Etc.

A full sized novel of deep vital interest to everyone. It should be read by young and old. The story is free from any suggestion of socialistic motives, and is a most absorbing human chronicle, with a romance of exquisite charm and sentiment.

Three illustrations in color by GAYLE HOSKINS. Jacket in full color. 12mo, cloth, $1.25 net; Postpaid $1.37

A Timely Work of Great Value and InterestPICKETT AND HIS MEN

BY

MRS. LA SALLE CORBELL PICKETT

The year 1913 marks the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. One of the most spectacular figures in the whole Civil War was General George Pickett, whose historic charge at Gettysburg excited the wonder of the world. His widow, LaSalle Corbell Pickett, has done a remarkable piece of work in "Pickett and His Men." It is an intimate recital of the events preceding, during and following the giant battle. The descriptions are dramatic and brilliant; the feeling is tender and poetic; and as a piece of literary work, it contains the most noble description of a charge ever penned. The soldiers of both North and South will long turn to this epic of Gettysburg not only as the standard work upon the subject, but also as a remarkably thrilling piece of writing.

Illustrated with portraits and battle scenes. $2.50 net; Postpaid $2.70
